

GUESTS OF THE ROOSEVELT HOTEL GET ‘HOOKED UP’ WITH NEW TVs AND INTERNET SERVICE

NEW YORK – Combining the classic styling of yesteryear with all the modern conveniences of today, The Roosevelt Hotel proudly announces the addition of new flat screen TVs and faster Internet service in each of the hotel’s 1,015 guest rooms.

The Roosevelt Hotel, conveniently located in the heart of midtown Manhattan, allows guests seeking a little rest and relaxation to get all they need from the comfort of their rooms. New LG 32-inch flat screen TVs invite guests to unwind in the “city that never sleeps” atop the carefully crafted and methodically designed Roosevelt bed. A rich foundation of triple-layered sheets and five plush pillows give even the most selective sleeper something to choose from.

For New York City business travelers or visitors wishing to stay connected, the new Wayport high-speed Internet connection allows guests to hook-up with ease and faster than ever. Each guest room, including the 52 suites, feature the latest D-link switch with wired and wireless access available for a per day connection fee. The hotel’s 30,000 square feet of meeting space has been upgraded as well.

“We are extremely pleased with the new Internet upgrade,” John Trovato, General Manager of The Roosevelt Hotel, said. “The new system is much faster and does not require guest laptops to be configured in order to access the connection, ensuring hotel visitors get the most out of their time.”

Deemed GRAND DAME OF MADISON AVENUE SINCE 1924, The Roosevelt Hotel whisks guests through the revolving doors of the hotel, where they are immediately transported to the grandeur of old New York. The hotel is located right in the thick of things -- steps from Fifth-Avenue shopping and a straight shot to the hip East Village and Lower East Side's restaurants and bars.
